EL DORADO
Mineral Water
 S. HAMILTON, Agent, Roseburg, Or.
 Geo. W. Jones:
 DEAR SIR—I have delayed answering your letter in order to send you the enclosed certificate. Mr. Hart Reeve declines to give a testimonial at present for the reason that he has been under the treatment of a number of Physicians and thinks that they might not like it if he were to make the affirmation of the effect your Mineral Water had upon him. I will describe the case to you as near as I can: He had been sick about two years and so unwell that he had formed around him just below the ribs. He drank your Mineral Water three or four times a day, and the pain went off in such a way as to cause his legs and feet to swell, but that soon disappeared, and he is now in comfortable health. There are a number of persons here who have spoken to me for some of the water to use in their cases, and I would like to use a little myself. I think it is the best serious remedy I ever knew. Please send me five gallons of the water. Respectfully,
 E. A. HANSEE

Me Apologized.
 A story is told of a Nauvutuck man who purchased a load of wood of one of his neighbors. The wood was of such poor quality and so crooked that he complained bitterly about it. Finally, after exhausting his vocabulary, he said: "If I ever see a meamer load of wood than this I'll apologize to you for what I have said." The man who bought the wood moved to Westport, and after several years had passed came home one night and looked over a load of wood that had been left in his yard during the day. He walked around it a few times, and finally went into the house and said to his wife: "I have got to go to Nauvutuck right away." "What have you got to go to Nauvutuck now for?" inquired his wife. "Why I told Mr. So-and-so that if I ever found a meamer load of wood than the one that he sold me I would apologize to him for what I said about it; I have found it and am going." And he at once took the train for Nauvutuck and apologized to the man according to his promise.—Bridgeport (Conn.) Standard.

"Why a man laughs at a joke instead of weeping, and why one weeps at a stroke of pathos instead of laughing, are questions," says a recent German writer in discussing the positive results of science in the department of psychology, "which are just as blind as ever they were in Parmenides or Plato; but the man who should reverse the process would be voted mad by his fellows, nevertheless."

WAR DECLARED!
Printers Strike at Last—Every Prospect that they will be Successful!

For some time past it has been generally conceded that the firms who, in order to secure and hold their trade are obliged to resort to the system of sending drummers on the road, are not the firms for a business man to deal with, unless he is satisfied with seventy-five cents for a dollar. A business man (and printers and publishers are generally good business men) can readily understand that a traveler's expenses have to be paid, and out of the profits of his sales. A drummer's expenses average about ten dollars per day, when upon long trips of three and four months. That means simply ten per cent. added to price of your goods. The drummer figures in this way: He calls upon a publisher, who, we will say, wants a power press, and has made up his mind to buy the best, thinking (and rightly, too,) that the best is, in the long run, the cheapest. He has decided upon a Campbell, or perhaps a Cottrell press (and couldn't have made a better choice), and figured carefully upon the freight, etc.—forgetting, of course, the drummer's ten per cent.; but the drummer doesn't forget it. He talks all round, nibbles first on one press and then upon another, until he at last finds a machine that may be $100 or $200 less in price than the publisher's choice, and finding that the publisher is not familiar with the price, make or working qualities of the press, he then exerts his entire chin-power upon enlarging this power press. Perhaps it is a "Prouty"—it will grind out anything, from quartz to sausages, in three colors. The publisher orders a press—gets a quartz crusher; drummer makes ten days' expenses—hurries along to reach some pleasant loafing town—thinks he's smart—has not time to see this publisher next trip. In short, the drummer for second-class houses (for such are they) that will foist inferior type and machinery upon printers and publishers, under the plea that they are "cheap," knowing that they must get ten per cent. more than any other house, in order to pay the drummer) aims to make his expenses by plausibly representing goods for what they are not, at a reduced price.

Now, there is a difference between this second-class firm's drummer and the first class. You take the largest house, for instance, in the business. They figure that they have four-fifths of all the trade; they make more sales, though on smaller margins; they are reliable; they don't lose customers; their aggregate profits are larger; they say, "We can afford to devote the profits of a portion of our business to securing a branch where it will be an accommodation and a help to our customers," or, if the trade is limited and will not support a branch house, the firm handles only the best type, presses and machinery in the world. Their traveler is required to sell only the best and always at one price. There is no chance for publishers being imposed upon if they are determined to buy the best. Then buy from the best firm in your line of business, and you will buy from PALMER & REY.

If you are located in Oregon or Washington Territory, buy from the Portland house, where you can purchase lower than the drummer can sell you by ten per cent.
A CONSUL'S DILEMMA.
 The Unfortunate Position in Which a British Officer Was Placed During the War at a His Happy Deliverance.
 Colonel Edward Cantwell, who is at present one of the professors at the Georgia Military Academy, in Savannah, was military Governor of Norfolk under the C. S. A., in 1862, and ordered the British Consul to report for duty on the home guard. But the latter was more willing to serve his country in the paths of peace and pleasantness, and objected on the ground of being Consul at Norfolk.
 "Consul to what Government, sir?"
 "To the United States Government."
 "But, sir, you are not in the United States; you are in the Confederate States, and you must show me papers so rediting you to the Confederate States of America."
 "But my Government don't recognize you as a Government."
 "Very well, then, my Government don't recognize you as a Consul. You must shoulder your musket and join your company, was the laconic answer of Colonel Cantwell.
 However, the unwelcome Consul threatened to have a gunboat come and bombard Norfolk before he would serve.
 "O," said the Colonel, "that is just what I would like to see, for then the United States will go to war to fight you, as it claims that Norfolk is still part of the Union, and then, between you and the United States fighting, we shall go free."
 However, the end of it was the Consul appealed to Mr. Benjamin, Confederate Secretary of War, who ordered his exemption from military duty, and so the three-cornered war that Colonel Cantwell wanted to see did not arise, and consequently the C. S. A. did not go free.—Savannah News.

"Stern parent—'Here, my son, what is this?' You were not at school last week." Astonished boy—"How do you know?" Indignant father—"Your teacher told me so." Wary boy—"Did he see me?" Wretched papa—"No, not once." Triumphant boy—"Then how does he know I wa'n't there?"—Echanna.

Not Too Proud.
 [From Texas Friend.]
 A gentleman who owns a fine tract of cedar land not far from Austin, Tex., a few days ago told that some negroes were cutting down the timber, so he rode out to see about it. To his astonishment he found a wealthy white neighbor, with a team and wagon, hauling off the timber.
 "Why, I am astonished, colonel," said the owner of the land. "I heard that a lot of negroes were stealing my timber and here I find you, a white man, cutting my timber. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."
 "Well, to tell the truth," responded the other party, "I do hate to steal the timber like a dorky, but these cedar trees make such bulky fence rails that I concluded to drop all pride of race."

The Editor of The Irish World.
 Patrick Ford began newspaper work as printer boy on Garrison's Liberator in Boston. He afterward published a paper in Charleston, S. C. With his present paper he wields a large influence among our citizens of Irish birth. He has raised funds as great as $250,000 for various patriotic purposes. Mr. Ford is of an extremely retiring disposition. He lives in Brooklyn, N. Y., and is not seen at the office of his paper in New York more than once a year.

COL. DONK PLATT.
 A descendant of one of the early French settlers, his grandfather, a distinguished officer of the Revolution, and a merchant and banker of Cincinnati, Donk Platt retains many of the characteristics of the Frenchman. A native of Ohio, he studied law, was admitted to the bar, and shortly after placed on the bench from which he was appointed to the diplomatic service at Paris by President Pierce. At the outbreak of our civil war he entered as a private, and soon after accepted the position of adjutant of Gen. Robert C. Schenck, serving with honor through the war. In 1865 Col. Platt was elected from Logan county to the Ohio legislature, here he made himself obnoxious to the republicans by his advocacy of reform measures. Sickening of politics, with an experience that has since proved invaluable to him, he turned his attention to journalism. For three years Washington correspondent of The Cincinnati Commercial he supplied that paper with a letter a day during the session of congress. These letters were a tremendous success, the reason for which Col. Platt says was "the American public longed for personalities and I catered to that taste. In Washington I found the cause of the winds, and the senate a proposterous fog-bank. My holding a solemn old pump of a senator up to ridicule was as startling as it was delicious to the public."
 At the end of his three years work as correspondent he joined with George Alfred Townsend in starting The Washington Capital. Townsend shortly afterwards retired from the paper, as did Mr. Platt's time.

Florence Poole's Hotel Clerk.
 [New York Sun.]
 Florence, the actor, got a little fun out of the anti-Jewish crusade at a summer hotel. His joyful face has Irish lines in it, but no lineament could be construed as Jewish. He had read about the situation, and it came into his mind as he walked up to the registry. He wrote in the book "S. Isaac, New York." The clerk looked at the signature in sudden alarm, and then gazed earnestly into the comedian's visage. "Is that your name, sir?" he stammered, quite thrown off his usual steady balance. "Dot his my name, yes," was the reply, in excellent dialect. "Is sook—Solomon Jacob?" "Then I am sorry to say that we can't give you a room." At this point the bystanders laughed, and the actor's joke was duly noted for publication.

The Driver of Jay-Eye-See.
 [New York Sun.]
 This now famous jockey was brought up on the stock farm of Mr. Case, the owner of Jay-Eye-See, at Racine, Wisconsin. Though but thirty years of age he has already shown remarkable judgment as a trainer, and coolness and patience as a driver.
